CHALLENGES OF PARENTING IN A POST MODERN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lanula Panger

"Today we are living in a world of waste and wonder, a world of poverty and plenty, where people have come up with Companies to trade across all lands. But in the process, they have swelled and got much bigger than we ever could have planned. We'd always had our wants but now we can get it so quick. We could have anything that we dreamed of in a day with just a click or by simply pressing a button. We noticed that the families have stopped talking. That is not to say that they never spoke, but the meaning must have melted and the work-life balance broke. The children's eyes grew squarer and every child had a phone. They filtered out the imperfections but amidst the noise, they felt alone. Every day the skies grew thicker, till we couldn't see the stars. We drive around in cars all day in circles. We have forgotten how to run, we swapped the grass for tarmac, shrunk the parks till there were none. We filled the sea with plastic because our waste was never capped. While we drank, smoked and gambled, our leaders taught us why..... It's best not to disturb the lobbies but more convenient to die." (Excerpts from 'The Great Realization')

The above Excerpts clearly depicts the present day scenario where parents are struggling to adopt and adjust our lives in this Digital World.

Parenting has become a daunting task for most parents in our present times. The reason why parenting has become quite challenging is due to the fact that our lifestyle is rapidly changing with newer requirements and demands being instilled into our lives. Maintaining a balance between parenting duties and work has become fairly stressful for parents as a result of which many married couples are beginning to cut down on the number of children they should have, while a few others are outrightly rejecting parenthood.

In this Article [As I pen down my thoughts], I would like to highlight a few challenges which I have seen in my own parenting experience, as well as those that I have observed. I am certain that many of us can relate to some, if not to all the challenges.

Balancing Family and Career

We often feel torn between professional and parenting responsibilities. When we are focusing on one, we feel like we are neglecting the other. This is a common dilemma for today's parents, who often have packed schedules. It is truly a challenge to carve out and deliver the gift of time for both on a regular basis. Likewise, children have packed after-school schedules , which leave them with little or no time to simply be with their parents and siblings preparing a meal together, doing household chores while enjoying each other's company.

Time Management

One of the most imperative parenting challenges today is the scarcity of time. Parents have to complete office tasks, perform household duties, look after children, and render voluntary services to various Unions and Organizations. Parents face difficulty in reserving time for each of the work in the best possible way. However, if the same works are planned with better time management then we can reserve time for all the works without letting our children suffer at all. We cannot move ahead and focus solely on one particular work while neglecting our parenting job. Children need fair attention from parents and if their needs are not looked upon, they may suffer from ignorance and become a victim of inferiority complex. Our society, being Patriarchal, perhaps mothers are the hardest hit in this area.

Changing Moral Values

Children today are different from children in the past generations because of societal and modern cultural influences. In this modern age, majority of our children are outspoken, fearless and less obedient and in a hurry to be independent of their parents. Many children are involved in undesirable activities because they have not been taught proper moral values by their parents. Due to lack of moral principles, they fail to distinguish between right and wrong and get more attracted towards acquiring inappropriate behaviour patterns like drug-addiction, gun-culture, transgender issues and homosexuals to name a few. The world they live in today is less predictable and the system does not offer much help to parents who are trying to raise responsible children.

Invasion of Homes by Mass Media

Our children in today's generation are digital experts and parents are facing new challenges on how to discipline their children. The entry of mass media and audio-visual media on children could be quite damaging. Technological gadgets like cellphones, computers, play stations and internet constitute the world of the children of this age. Social media is good but we cannot downplay its negative influences. Our homes are invaded by media culture which takes its toll on family relationships as parents no longer spend time with their children while children have little or no interaction with their parents. Our children need to be informed about the hazards regarding excessive use of the internet. The internet has become one of the most useful technologies in our recent times but unless it is regulated and monitored by parents, it has the potential to destroy our homes. Our lifestyles have been deeply affected, our social lives have been disrupted to the point where it is even affecting our mental health. This is going to be costly. We need to wake up.

Lack of Emotional Bonding

The attachment and relationship between parent and child is very much like a rope. Each positive interaction between parent and child adds a new thread and strengthens the overall emotional connection or bonding. Today, due to a lack of emotional bonding between children and parents, many children hesitate to open up to their parents, refrain from sharing their troubles with their parents and seek attention from their friends or virtual online friends instead. Recognizing, knowing and understanding the feelings and emotions of each other is very important in creating an emotional bond for a strong parent-child relationship.

Alarming Cases of Depressed Children

Many factors increase the risk of developing depression that negatively impact self-esteem; such as obesity, peer-problems, bullying in academic institutions as well as at home by elder siblings, academic problems or victims of physical or sexual abuse. Many homes today have highly qualified youths sitting at home with no job avenues to exercise their expertise which ultimately leads to depression. It is a known fact that today, many youngsters are battling depression in silence. Parents should be able to recognize the changes and give all possible help and support to solve such issues.

Internet Substituting Parents

The impact of internet today is so immense that the role of parents is becoming less significant than it was in the past. Many children turn to the internet to find answers and solutions to their problems instead of seeking help from their parents. They are aware that google will give them the correct answers rather than the parents who are technologically backward. Since we cannot prevent our children from interacting on the internet, we should at least understand how the internet works and know how to monitor and control our children's usage of it, because children today more than ever before need acceptance, love, respect, spiritual and emotional support as well as material comforts from parents.

Parenting today is going through constant evolution, and as such, we need to update our knowledge of our children and their world. Five vital points are suggested for better parenting in today's world.

- We should understand the world a child is exposed to. Unless we do this, we will never understand why children act the way they do sometimes.
- We should give our children room to grow and should not suffocate them.
- We should respect our children and when we do that our children will respect us in return.
- We should give our children more of a listening ear and not scolding, or dishing out instructions always.
- We should discipline our children when there is a need for that.

Parenting in the post Modern Society is tough. It's hard work. It takes investing time, effort and energy.-That can be hard after a long day at work. But it's an investment that has lifelong dividends. The challenges are difficult and many. So how do we, as Christian parents deal with these challenges?

Our Heavenly Father has given us the responsibility to teach our children the love of God, “ Train a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it. (Proverbs 22:6) “ Impress them on your children, Talk about them when you sit at home and when you walk along the road, when you lie down and when you get up.” (Deuteronomy 6:7)

We are to love God, teach His commandments to our children and live each day by the guidelines in His word. God emphasized the importance of parents teaching the Bible to their children. The church, Sunday schools or any other resources cannot replace or take this responsibility from us. Today, temptations and struggles are way too many for our children to cope with , but if our children are deeply rooted in Christ, no earthly forces will succeed in leading them go astray from the loving care and protection of our Heavenly Father.

We need to ask ourselves, 'Who or what am I serving?' Am I serving Christ by the way I spend my time, money and abilities, or am I striving to please and live up to what is acceptable and seemingly necessary in the eyes of the world? If God is the central focus of our home, God will definitely help us evaluate and bring clarity to the challenges we face with Truth, rather than the cultural standard.

Many challenges we face as parents have more to do with us than they do with our children, because we love our children and want what is best for them.

But underneath some of the choices we make, and the pressures we give into without really putting any thought into them, are driven somewhat by how it will reflect on us. It is very important that we recognize where we are tempted to be driven by pride in our parenting.

The grace of the Lord brings healing and hope to the weary and discouraged parent who feels like they just can't provide their child or family with what the society deems necessary for success. When we try to keep up with the ways of world rather than ways of God, we will be pulled down into a never ending spiral of defeat and stress. It is our rightful duty to bring all our burdens to God and be filled with His Truth so that we can easily recognize the unrealistic and unhealthy expectations that we may be placing on ourselves, which God never asked us to carry.

Each family is unique, with a different set of circumstances, challenges and personal convictions. If we prayerfully ask the Lord's direction and seek wisdom from the Bible and other godly men and women in the process of forming the personal convictions of our family, then we can humbly be confident in those convictions.

God knows our circumstances, our children and our unique challenges. He ordained them for His purposes, and God will use them in His time and way for our good and for His glory. He will equip us for what He has called us to and will lead us in wisdom, truth and grace in humility and learn to view our role as a parent through the lens of the gospel and an eternal perspective.

Like our children seeking our help and guidance, God is our faithful parent to whom we must turn to for guidance. God will strengthen us in the fight against all modern challenges of the world as we pray, grow in the truth of His word, and rest in the confidence that we have no one to please but the One who is our Lord Jesus over every parent's decisions, failures, and successes.

But from everlasting to everlasting the Lord's love is with those who fear Him, and His righteousness with their children's children" (Psalms 103:17)
